Baretz+Brunelle Promotes Jason Milch to Partner

Firm Announces Promotion with Message on Wrigley Field Scoreboard

CHICAGO – June 2, 2016 – As the Chicago Cubs were beating the Los Angeles Dodgers last night, Baretz+Brunelle Managing Director Jason Milch learned he had been named the firm’s newest partner when he was congratulated on Wrigley Field’s scoreboard.

Milch was an integral part of the 16-member team that launched Baretz+Brunelle this past February. Prior to that, he worked with founding partners Spencer Baretz and Cari Brunelle at Hellerman Baretz Communications, joining the firm in 2012 and opening its Chicago office.

“Jason is everything we look for in a business partner – excellent business sense, a rock-solid presence, and most importantly, he’s a good person,” said Baretz+Brunelle co-founder Spencer Baretz. “Jason has stepped up time and time again, his clients adore him, and it is such an honor to have him as our partner.”

“Jason is one of the most dependable and level-headed PR advisors I have ever met. His clients, several of which have been with him for nearly a decade, have trusted him to provide them with solid, unwavering counsel and support, and so have we,” co-founder Cari Brunelle said. “We could not be more excited to have him join us as B+B’s third partner.”

For more than 10 years, Milch has provided strategic communications advice to clients in the legal and financial industries, developing campaigns tailored to their business development goals. His legal industry work has resulted in numerous high-profile awards for his clients, as well as coverage from virtually all of the world’s most prestigious media outlets. Milch also has considerable crisis communications experience, guiding national law firms through various challenging issues, including investigations, merger discussions and reductions in force. He also is engaged regularly by corporate clients to provide communications support for their most consequential litigation matters.

Prior to his work in the legal industry, Milch worked with financial, healthcare and technology-sector clients. He earned his undergraduate degree in communications and electronic media from The Ohio State University.
